

Social Media Disclaimer

Updated 31/07/2024

Prepared by:

FUNDHOUSE

Background

Investing does involve you taking risk and that means that the value of your investments can fall as well as rise and that you may not get back the money you invested. Please be aware of these risks.

For the sake of clarity, social media involves:

- Twitter, for the sake of clarity, our twitter handle is @Fundhouse.
- LinkedIn, our LinkedIn profile is @FundhouseUK
- Our website (www.fundhouse.co.uk)

All social media posts apply to Fundhouse Limited and Fundhouse Bespoke Limited (known as Fundhouse for the sake of this document). Such social media posts are aimed at professional clients only, which usually means that such people are authorised and regulated by the FCA (Financial Conduct Authority). If you do not fit into this category, please do not make use of our social media posts.

Please note that any of our opinions expressed on social media may change and be rendered inaccurate as time passes, or because we made mistakes with the information. All our opinions on social media are designed to be accurate and reliable, but this cannot be guaranteed.

When seeing any posts on social media, please note that we are not offering any investment advice whatsoever and we are not making any investment recommendations. You should always seek your own investment advice, ideally from an independent financial adviser before making any investment decisions. Likewise, any posts via social media should not be seen as an offer or inducement of any kind, to engage in any investment activity or investment advice. If, for some reason, you do invest on the basis of something you read or saw on social media, you will be doing so at your own risk. Fundhouse will have no liability at all, should you suffer any loss, costs or any other related suffering.

From time to time we also make mistakes with information. Although we do aim to make our posts accurate, we cannot accept responsibility for any errors, inaccuracies or omissions or any inconsistencies in our posts. Fundhouse has not necessarily verified all information. As with the result of this disclaimer, we strongly urge anyone to desist from acting on any of this information and to seek independent financial advice. If you do act on any information, we cannot be held responsible.